Psychology of Language
PSYC 336, Section 001, 3 Credits, Term 2, 2012-2013
T, Th 11:00; Swing Space 121

Instructor: Dr. Laurel Fais

Office: 2527 Kenny Building
Phone: 604-418-6642
E-mail: lfais@psych.ubc.ca
Office Hour: Tuesday, 12:45 – 1:45

TA: Natasha Pestonji
Office: 3208 Kenny Building
E-mail: natasha.pestonji@psych.ubc.ca
Office hour: Monday, 3:00 – 4:00

Required readings

There is no text. A pre-assembled set of articles is available for purchase at the UBC Bookstore.

Daily requirements

Take responsibility for learning. If this sounds like a cliché to you, please take a moment to consider what it really means.
Be on time to class. This class is a good place for you to practice this basic and essential form of respect for your professor, your TA and your classmates. And, it means you’ll be there for the quizzes.
Bring paper and a writing implement. We will be writing regularly, and we will be writing by hand, not on computer.
Pay attention. See comment after “Take responsibility for learning.”
Participate. Questions, new ideas, example and anecdotes, all those contributions are good forms of participation. Plus, your involvement is an integral part of the way the class will work.

Course requirements

Occasionally: At unannounced times during the term, there will be a Five-Minute Quiz at the (exact) start of class. The Quiz will consist of one (1) question from the current topic, drawn either from the reading assignments or from class lectures.

• The quiz will begin promptly at the start of class.
• You will have four minutes to write your answer on a single sheet of letter-sized paper that you will provide.
• You will have one minute to hand it in.
• Your name, student number, and date must be written legibly on the top of the page in order for you to receive credit.
• Quizzes are graded out of 5 points: 3 points for content; 2 points for clarity.
This is a transparent effort to make sure you are keeping up with the reading and are attending and on time to class, and to provide an assessment, both to you and to me, of your understanding of the content of the class.
Quizzes: 20% of your grade
Language sample: Due Wednesday, January 11. You are required to bring in a detailed, written transcription of an actual conversation between at least two people. The conversation should consist of
- at least four turns per person (do NOT use real names),
- of which at least two turns per person have more than two utterances.
IMPORTANT: include notes in extensive detail about the context of the conversation: setting, time, etc. Please take care that the subject matter is appropriate for sharing with the entire class.

Bring in two copies of this sample: one to be handed in at the beginning of class, and the other to be shared in group discussion. The original recording can be made in audio recording, or by written transcription. If at all possible, audio recordings are preferred; they will provide better information for your work with this language sample later in the term. You do not need to hand in audio recordings, only your written transcription.

Group work and presentations: In the second week of class, you will be assigned to a group. On our first discussion day, January 10, the groups will examine the language samples brought in by each member of the group. They will choose one sample that will be the primary focus of the group in-class discussions for the rest of the term. On discussion days, groups will analyze their language sample from the point of view of the week’s topic. They may also draw examples from the language samples of other members of the group, if appropriate. One person will present the ideas of the group to the rest of the class. In addition, that student will turn in a one-page written summary of the ideas of the group, due the following class day (the grade for this summary is given only to the person who wrote it, not to the group as a whole). The person will change each time until every member of the group has had a chance to present. This presentation and write-up are a requirement of the course. The write-up is an opportunity to practice the skills needed to do the final project paper, and to get feedback on how well you can analyze your language sample.

Write-up: 15% of your grade

First midterm examination. Short answer/essay questions. The exam will be held in class on February 14.

22% of your grade

Language sample essay: After the first midterm, the groups will be divided in half ONLY for the purpose of the final language sample essay. (That is, the entire group still works together for the in-class discussions.) These smaller groups will work together to write a discussion of any aspect of the course that you have found interesting and pertinent to the language samples of your essay-writing group. For this essay, you may draw examples from all the samples of the group members, except the sample that was the focus of the term class discussions. The essay will be due on the last day of class, April 4. The language sample essay of your group will be graded on
- Your group’s ability to demonstrate your understanding of the topic(s) you chose;
- Your group’s ability to identify areas of your samples that exemplify or challenge that topic;
- The depth of the analysis of your language samples;
- The logical and organizational clarity of your essay.

Each member of the group will receive the grade given to the essay as a whole. Further details about the essay will be made available after the midterm.

Essay: 20% of your grade
Second midterm examination: Short answer/essay questions. The exam will be held in class on March 21.
23% of your grade

Psychology Department’s Policy on Grade Distributions and Scaling

In order to reduce grade inflation and maintain equity across multiple course sections, all psychology courses are required to comply with departmental norms regarding grade distributions. According to departmental norms, the mean grade in a 300-level class is 70 for a good class, 68 for an average class, and 66 for a weak class, with a standard deviation of 13. Scaling is likely to be used in order to comply with these norms; grades may be scaled up or down as necessary by the professor or department. Missed exams: You must inform Dr. Fais in advance if an exam is to be missed (e-mail: lfais@psych.ubc.ca) and produce a medical certificate or documentation of family emergency upon returning to class; otherwise, a grade of 0 will be assigned.

Psychology Department’s Position on Academic Misconduct

Cheating, plagiarism, and other forms of academic misconduct are very serious concerns of the University, and the Department of Psychology has taken steps to alleviate them. In the first place, the Department has implemented software that can reliably detect cheating on multiple-choice exams by analyzing the patterns of students’ responses. In addition, the Department subscribes to TurnItIn—a service designed to detect and deter plagiarism. All materials (term papers, lab reports, etc.) that students submit for grading will be scanned and compared to over 5 billion pages of content located on the Internet or in TurnItIn’s own proprietary databases. The results of these comparisons are compiled into customized “Originality Reports” containing several, sensitive measures of plagiarism; instructors receive copies of these reports for every student in their class. In all cases of suspected academic misconduct, the parties involved will be pursued to the fullest extent dictated by the guidelines of the University. Strong evidence of cheating or plagiarism may result in a zero credit for the work in question. According to the University Act (section 61), the President of UBC has the right to impose harsher penalties including (but not limited to) a failing grade for the course, suspension from the University, cancellation of scholarships, or a notation added to a student’s transcript.

All graded work in this course, unless otherwise specified, is to be original work done independently by individuals. Do use any of the indexes and databases listed under Indexes and Databases, Subject Resources, OneSearch or Metasearch on the Library’s website at http://www.library.ubc.ca. (Not sure which index to use? Click HELP on the library homepage at www.library.ubc.ca or try Subject Resources.)

If you have any questions as to whether or not what you are doing is even a borderline case of academic misconduct, please consult your instructor. For details on pertinent University policies and procedures, please see Chapter 5 in the UBC Calendar (http://students.ubc.ca/calendar).
Class schedule and assigned readings

January 3: Introduction to class

January 8, 10: The structure and substance of language
Fromkin et al., Chapter 1, An Introduction to Language, 2006, p. 3-19.

January 10: Language sample due

January 15, 17: One phenomenon in language acquisition

January 22, 24: Poverty of the stimulus argument

January 29, 31: Is language special?

February 5, 7: Universal Grammar?

February 12, 14: Discussion, Review and First Midterm
February 14: First Midterm

February 26, 28: What bilingualism can tell us about language

February 26: Form small groups for final essay writing

March 5, 7: Bilingualism
March 12, 14: Language in use

March 19, 21: Review and Second Midterm
March 21: Second Midterm

March 26, 28: Language and world view

April 2, 4: Language and world view

April 4: Language sample essay due